

Mary has Chronic Fatigue Syndrome and Irritable Bowel Syndrome. She is taking Kambo for the first time. She is very curious about the practitioner and constantly bombards them with questions about their personal life and health.

Tom is a male Kambo Practitioner who has been practicing just one year. He has been doing one to one sessions and small circles but has just recently started doing bigger circles. Today he has 7 people in the circle including Mary, a woman who suffers from Chronic Fatigue Syndrome.

Evelyne is 74 and suffers from Gout and Arthritis. Her daughter has persuaded her that Kambo can help her. She is both nervous and intrigued.

Carol is Evelyne's daughter. She has taken Kambo 3 times to help with her Diabetes, with different people including Tom's teacher. She is a little unsure about Tom on first meeting and asks him lots of questions about his training and experience. She hopes that she has not made a mistake by bring her Mum with her.

Sara is very concerned about the fact that her Mother died from cancer and feels very strongly that she will go the same way. She is very nervous and anxious about taking Kambo but she has read the research and believes that if there is any cancer in her body already that the Kambo will kill it.

Michael is in his 50s with a history of minor heart problems. He has 4 stents already and wants to avoid having another. He is physically strong and looking forward to Kambo.

Daisy has taken Kambo several times on her travels in South America. She wants to do the training to be a practitioner next year and she is very enthusiastic and asks lots of questions. She asks if the practitioner can show her some things, touches things on the altar and compares the practitioner to other practitioners she has sat with.

Paul has been traveling in South America and heard about Kambo but never had the courage to try it. Now he wants to take it just for the experience. Good physical health apart from a broken leg and appendix removal when he was younger. Very high alcohol consumption over a period of years. Phobia of blood and needles. Very concerned and anxious about the burning

Janet is a female practitioner who has lots of experience and has been taking Kambo for 3 years and giving for 2. She is very knowledgeable but hates burning ears and struggles with singing. Today she has 7 people in her circle including Jenny and Pedro, and they are clearly not compatible.

Jenny is an old hippie who has experimented with every drug under the sun. Her friend told her about Kambo and she just wants to try it 'for the experience'. Her friend has a very strong reaction because he had his points on the spine so she would like this too.

Pedro is from Chile where Kambo is very popular. He has taken it every year for the last five years. He has come along for his annual top up. He doesn't agree that Jenny should be allowed to take Kambo just for the experience. He believes it's a serious medicine and that she is not showing proper respect. He takes her to task over her attitude

Fred is 28, well-travelled and worldly wise. He's very into natural medicine and he wants to reboot his immune system as he suffers from a lot of colds in the winter. He has not followed instructions and has eaten just 4 hours ago. He asks what the bucket is for and then reveals he has eaten.

Poppy is a party girl in her early twenties. She has been drinking and taking recreational drugs since she was 14. She's bleary eyed, hung-over, smells of alcohol and says that she did not sleep the previous night. She hasn't read the info sheet but says that her friend told her that Kambo can help with addictions so she wants to see if it can resolve hers.

Fabio is Italian from Rome. He is good looking and flirts with every female. He wants his points on his shoulder and he makes a big deal of taking off his top and showing off his muscles. He hurt his knee playing football nearly a year ago and still has pain when he runs.

Shanti Deva is a very spiritual person. At the beginning of the ceremony, she surrounds herself with all her crystals and other devotional objects. She is wearing several mala beads and dangly earrings but she is taking Kambo very seriously. She has some issues around depression and anxiety that she would like to resolve and she has been taking St Johns Wort daily for a year.

Bill suffers from pain and numbness in his left foot after a motorcycle accident. He has taken Kambo twice before with good results. This time, he wants to do a double or triple treatment to prolong and deepen the results but he's worried about having so many burn marks and about fainting because he has low blood pressure.

Jazzie – identifies as male but born female. History of psychotic episodes, mild and infrequent. Has Psoriasis but otherwise no health problems of note.
